

BALTIMORE
WASHINGTON Center for Psychoanalysis

Baltimore Washington Institute for Psychoanalysis
2011 - 2012 Introductory Courses

Selected Introductory Courses will be open to psychoanalytic candidates and also to individuals who have completed, or are taking, our psychotherapy courses or fellowship program. Other interested mental health professionals may apply by contacting Dr. Barry Landau at 202-362-8625 to arrange a telephone interview and by providing a letter of reference from a recent supervisor. The content of the courses will be adapted to the level of the participants. Credit earned by non-candidates in these introductory courses may be used towards the Psychoanalytic Training Program, if the participants are accepted into the program at a later date.

Ethics in Psychoanalysis Judith M. Chertoff, M.D.

This course introduces participants to ethical principles and standards in psychoanalysis. The course covers issues such as psychoanalytic competence, confidentiality, boundary issues, relationships with colleagues, students, supervisees and teachers, and responsibilities to the public and the profession.

Wednesdays, March 28 and April 25, 2012, 8:15-9:45 p.m.

Clinical Conference in Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy Barry J. Landau, M.D.

In this course, faculty members present process material from their own work to demonstrate important concepts in psychoanalysis and psychotherapy. Participants are also invited to present their clinical work. Examples of concepts that will be explored include treatment, boundaries, work with defenses, identification and transference.

Saturdays, Feb. 18, March 3, March 17 and March 31, 2012, 9:00-10:30 a.m.

Continuous Case Conference on Termination Jill Berkowitz, M.D. and Earle Baughman, M.D.

This course discusses issues pertaining to the termination of treatment. Case examples will be used to illustrate the concepts

Tuesdays, March 6, 13, 20, and 27, 2012, 8:00-9:30 p.m.

Introduction to Concepts in Psychoanalysis and Psychodynamic Psychotherapy Georgia Royalty, Ph.D.

This course compares psychoanalysis and psychodynamic psychotherapy relying on recent literature and clinical examples. Discussions focus on indications for treatment, technical approaches and goals with adults.

Saturdays, May 5, 12 and 19, 2012, 11:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Introduction to Child Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy S. Kalman Kolansky, M.D.

This course introduces participants to important concepts of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy in working with children and adolescents, through the presentation of clinical process material.

Dates and times to be announced.

Tuition: $60.00 per session per course.

To obtain further information about the courses, please contact Dr. Landau at 202-362-8625.